ATLANTA ECONOMIC REVIEW

ARTICLES

PUBLISHED IN 1970

1970 WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR . . . for the Atlanta Economic Review. The magazine followed a constant and clear policy of improvement in quality and quantity, with the result that January's print order of 8,000 plus had risen by December to over 12,000. During the year the number of articles printed on topical and significant subjects was 133, produced by 148 expert authors who wrote about a third of a million words. Altogether in 1970, 118,950 copies of the Review were produced, which took a total of 18 tons of paper and 240 pounds of ink. And since figures can be fun, consider that if you placed every 1970 page end to end in a straight line the paper-roll would reach north from Atlanta past Toronto in Canada—or south to the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico!
